

Group 15

Section B

Title: Government or gimmick-ment?

● Character list:

1. President
2. Personal assistant
3. Friend 1
4. Friend 2
5. Ex president
6. Reporter/journalist
7. Corrupt general
8. Finance minister
9. Random audience

More characters will be added later as per the requirements of the play.

● Genre: Absurd humour

● Theme:

The audience gets a glimpse of a rather unusual set of events occurring in a rather unusual country.

- Outline:

The story revolves around a man, a resident of a country that follows a rather unusual way of choosing their leader. A lucky draw decides the next president with absolute power. As the protagonist unexpectedly wins the draw and assumes power and fame, he veers away from his duties and starts taking absurd decisions. He declared the pen he used to sign his winning ticket holy. He used this pen to sign all the important documents and office memorandums. Initially these decisions are taken well by few but not so well by the others. As time passed, several laws started backfiring and things started getting out of hand. Opposition grew as the citizens, including his two close friends, start questioning the efficacy of his decisions. The fate of the country hangs on a thin thread. We shall find out what happens next soon.

- Object:

The pen which the protagonist used to sign his winning ticket and eventually all important documents and memorandums.

• Group members:

202201371- Harshil Parmar

202201447:Devarshi Pravinkumar Patel

202201519: Ritik Tiwary

202201472 Prajapati Kaushik

202201320 : Sumit Kumar

202201362: Tanay Kewalramani

202201513: Tirth Modi

202201441: Het Panchotiya

202201424: Rit Rajendra Trambadia

202201522: Arnold Mochahari

202201314: Yash Kumar Nagvania